THE TAR CONSPIRACY.

Another Day in the Kelsey Murder Inquisition at Oyster Bay.

THE ARCH-CONSPIRATOR.

James McKay Acknowledges It, Glories in It and Would Not Reveal the Perpetrators.

PLOTTING IN THE SANCTUARY.

A Strong Point for the Defence Broken by Their Cwn Witness.

THAT "SUNDERED" CHAIN.

Its Links and Its Evidence Still Unbroken.

OYSTER BAY, L. L. Sept. 30, 1878. Coroner Baylis resumed the inquest in the Kelsey case this morning, according to adjournment, and the court room was probably half filled with spectators of the usual type. As soon as the jury roll had been called and the "twelve good men and true" had answered to their names Coroner Baylis grose and said, "It has been decided to continue this investigation to-day with closed doors in the belief that it will further the ends of justice to keep the proceedings and evidence elicited private. All present except those officially engaged in the case are, therefore, expected to withdraw."

There was comparatively little unwillingness manifested by the audience, but some jesting was indulged in at the expense of the reporters. It has considerably astonished some of the natives to understand how the secret testimony published in my letter of yesterday was obtained, and I understand that some of the officials were highly displeased with the display of enterprise. District Attorney Tuthill and Messrs. Young and Platt appeared as counsel for the people, and Justice Mon fort was present during a portion of the proceed-

I must say that I believe the plan of taking testimony in secret session would have resulted in obtaining more evidence if it had been resorted to at first in this case, as there is no question of the fact that the implicated parties have very diligently compared notes all through, and as fast as evidence of an important nature was elicited have endeavored to destry its effect. Some of their testimony of this sort was KNOCKED ENWISE to-day, however, by their own witness, a Mr. Charles Mullings, a blacksmith, of Newtown, formerly resident of Huntington. He was brought to disprove the theory that Keisey, when he disappeared, had the complete watch chain-afterwards found on the remains-on his person or in his This chain is the great point of identification of the remains. Mullings substantially testified, as will be seen below, 'hat he knew nothing about the matter he had so freely talked about.

But the swern testimony that deserves most attent on, probably, is that of James McKav, an illlooking individual, belonging to "the best families in Huntington," who sacredly affirmed, with a nourish as it were, that he was the author of the whole conspiracy; that he had never tried to find out who its actual physical perpetrators were, and would not disclose their names or identity if he anew them. By his own testimony, also, this man, already stricken of God by an affliction of his sight, shows that he even used the sanctuary of a Christian place of worship to concoct and mature his plots to "catch Kelsey."

The following is the testimony taken to-day:-ANOTHER "POSER" FOR IVES.

James M. Hendrickson, a shoemaker residing in Buntington, and a well known citizen of that place, wasthe first witness examined in the secret session. Hendrickson testified, in effect, that he had known James Ives for fifteen years, and saw him in Hun. tington on the 4th of November, 1872, in front of Duryea's Hotel, Main street; Ives was about four or five rods from the witness; witness was inside his store, and saw Ives through the window quite or five rods from the witness; witness was inside his store, and saw Ives through the window quite clearly; Ives crossed the street in a northeasteriy direction, and came within two or three rods of where witness was standing; Hendrickson thinks Ives had on a dark coat and light colored pants and hat; it was between twelve and two o'clock; witness was the day before election, and thought it strange that Ives should be there then; witness thinks when he first saw Ives he was getting out of the diage at the hotel door; does not remember who drove the stage, but thinks it was Jesse Conkin's stage; is not quite certain whether it was a light hat or cap Ives wore; has never had any difficulty with Ives nor any ill-feeling against him.

PISTOLS DRAWN ON KELSEY.

Walter R. Hewlett, son of the Surveyor of the Port of Cold Spring and a resident of that village, was examined and testified substantially that some time since he was on board the steamer D. R. Martin and met William J. Wood (sometimes called "Deacon" Wood; it was after the tarring and leathering of Kelsey, and Hewlett thinks it was in the spring: witness swears that he taiked with "Deacon" Wood about the Kelsey and have fought or made some resistance when he was seized; Mr. Wood rephed, "He did—they drew their pistols on him;" wit ess remembers distincity; Wood said he did not nimsell see Kelsey until after the tarring and feathering had been done; Wood did not state how he knew they had to draw their pistols on Keisey—he named no one; he was talking to witness aione when he said it; witness also heard Dr. Banks say, in huntington, that Kelsey had tar on his shoulders and back, but Banks did not, at any time, tell witness who took part in the affair.

George Mills, a neat-looking colored lad, a resident of Huntington, was next sworn. This youth is about eighteen or nineteen years of age, and has completely lost the sense of hearing. All the questions put to him were reduced to writing, and after reading them he made his answers in a peculiar, twangy, nasal t

McKay was in the store also at the time; they were all standing together talking when witness went away from there.

THE INSTIGATOR OF CRIME.

James McKay, a sinister-looking individual, and brother of John McKay, who squirmed so fearfully under examination some ten days since, was next called. He is tall and skim, and wears goggles, in consequence of some affect not of the eyes which renders bim almost blind. On his way up to the court room he almost tumbled over the Herald reporter, who was sitting patiently on the steps outside waiting for "points," and a chance to "buzz" somebody out of the "secrets." This witness testified that he did not see or hear James Ives on November 4, 1872, in Huntington; witness was not at Runtington depot that night (as testified to by John Fleet, who swore yesterday that he saw Ives and McKay went away together); witness lives a mile from the depot; there were two black or brown horses at his home and two gray, a pony and a black mare; witness drove sometimes one, sometimes the other, but generally drove the black mare; drove the grays frequently; witness wrote to a person before November 4, asking that person to come to Hunkington to watch for and caich Kelsey; it was about October 24; wriness wrote to Charles Baldwin, and man have written concerning Kelsey to his brother George McKay, who resides it the city; witness stated to Baldwin that had stated to a number of persons that Kelsey deavoring to get into the house or as lingering about the premises at night? A. He had.

Q. Then were you advised that it was necessary to have him identified more than once to punish him by legal means? A. No, I was not.

A. No; but I have heard on it; I was not there at the time.

Q. Did you ever see him enter or leave the house?
A. No; but I have heard on it; I was not there at the time.
Q. Then all you know about it is from What officers fold you?
A. No, it is not; I accused him of it, face to face.
A Juror-Accusation, face to face even, does not prove a man guilty, so far as I know.
Witness—I accused him of it at the time I was up at Kelsey's house with Roya!; Kelsey hung his head and said nothing.
Q. Are you certain that he made no reply of any sort to your remarks? A. He said something to the effect that "she has always had the means, or the power of stopping this thing;" after a while he said:—Then I won't annoy her any more."

Q. How often have you talked with Kelsey?
A. Never but once in my life; I invited Royal Sammis to go with me to see Kelsey; I conferred with Royal on Sunday night, November 3, at the First Presbyterian church, before service, about watching and trying to catch Kelsey that night; we agreed, and it was understood that as watch was to be kept that night, Roval should come back after he had leit Mrs. Oakley's house (Julia Smith's residence) and help; I never heard anything about tar and leathers to be used before the 5th of November; Royal said nothing about disguises to be worn; witness never watched for Kelsey;

WITNESS PROPOSED TO DR. BANKS that Kelsey should be watched and caught, and asked Dr. Banks to allow them to come to his house and watch, as it was so near to Mrs. Oakley's; witness asked that they should be allowed to meet there and Dr. Banks consented to the arrangement.

AFTER RECESS.

James McKay was recalled to testify to some other points in the case:

I spoke to Arthur M. Prime about watching for Kelsey, and to d him to speak to his lather, Claudius B. Prime, and ask him to watch with us; I do not know whether they watched or not; I was not in a wagon on the evening of November 1; I cannot swear that there was no horse and wagon driven from our house that alternoon; it was in the village on the morning of November 5.

Agnes Wood, a neat-looking young miss of eighteen or twenty years, was called; but, it appeared, after a brief inquiry, that she knew nothing about the case.

THE BROKEN CHAIR.

eignteen of twenty years, was called; but, it appeared, after a brief inquiry, that she knew nothing about the case.

The broken chair.

Charles A. Mullings testified;—I lived in Huntington last salt; I went, at the request of Wim. J. Wood, to search for Kelsey, about his house and lands, after his disappearance; I went, with others, to Henry Kelsey's house; Henry was crying; he said all he missed of his brother's clothing was an old suit he used to tend mason in; he said he was alraid charles had committed suicide; he said his brother had come home that night, he supposed; a light, he said, had been left burning for him on the kitchen table, and when they got up next morning it was there and still burning; Henry Kelsey told me that William Kelsey, his brother, had told him that Charle's watch was at home, with a piece of the chain attached; I saw the watch; it was lying on the table in one foom and I was in another; I paid no particular attention to it; when I saw the watch and chair Miss Kelsey was in the room. Nat. Brush, George Marthin, Constable Trainer and others went to the house with me; I saw a knit jacket there which lienry sald belonged to Charles; the watch I saw, with a piece of chain attached, was at William Kelsey's house; I can't tell how long the piece of chain was; William never told me anything about the coain; I think the watch and chain were on the table; cannot tell where the table shood in the room; it was in the sitting-room and I was in the kitchen when I saw it; I don't know and no one told me whose watch it was that was lying on the table; Miss Kelsey was crying at the time, but said nothing; I had merely a casual glance at the watch, and comidn't tell whether there was a whole chain on it; it might have been a whole chain; I might have gone into the room if I had wanted to; I uo not know at what time we were there.

Q. Do you know whether the watch you saw on the table watch where it is chused that you saw? A. It not.

Q. Might it not have been the glittering edge of the watch where it is chased that you saw? A. It might have been; I cannot describe the chan; I do not know in reality whether there was any chain on the watch; I was under the impression and belief that I saw it, but I am not positive.

This closed the witnesses' testimony, and he seemed very much embarrassed and was quite the below they be come down from the court form. flushed when he came down from the court room.

THE CORONER PUZZLED.

Before Mulling's examination the Coroner, who had evidently been reading the New York rapers during recess, looked gravely around the room and said:—"I think it is proper here to say that this is understood to be a secret investigation. I was a good deal sur, rised to find most or the testimony taken yesterday in to-day's HERALD. All I can say is, how it ever got there is a mystery to Bistrict Attorney Tuthil—We should swear the witnesses not to reveal their testimony.

Mr. Flatt—What do you say to Drinzing the report of the destimony?

Coroner—Its no use doing that; they've heard too much here from witnesses who don't recollect and can't remember. They'd be affected in the same way.

Some of the jurors almost fainted at the Coroner's cruel joke.

Mr. Platt—I think this should be either a private examination or a public one; if it is to be private every precaution should be acopted to keep the results of the examination private, if it is to the public interest to do so, and if the east of justice will be furthered by it. The matter was then dropped and the examination went on.

for over three years a resident of limitington, and generally presumed to be a principal in this affair, testified:—I went to Mrs. Gakley's about hail-past eight or inne o'clock on Sanday night, November 3, after leaving the First Presbyterian church; I wore a mask at Mrs. Oakley's which I got at Dr. Banks' house; I saw others whom I did not recognize, wearing mask it messay if the got at Dr. Banks' house; I saw others whom I did not recognize, wearing mask at Mrs. Oakley's which I got at Dr. Banks' house; I saw others whom I did not recognize, wearing mask at Mrs. Oakley's which I got at Dr. Banks' house; I saw others whom I did not recognize. This closed the examination and the further hearing was adjourned until Monday next.
